

LIBRARIES FOUND TO BE INFECTED NATIONWIDE

“Libraries across the glorious Imagine Nation of the People’s Republic of Poetry have been found infected with contrabland.”

Poemland Security reported its findings to the Poetburo this morning after a week of intense investigations sparked when contrabland was found in the libraries of Our Poem Town and Poet Hope.

The Poetburo approved proposals for an oversight agent to monitor procurement committees, a national review of procurement procedures, and monthly deployment of sensitivity sniffers provided by the K9 Department of Poemland Security.

“The Minister With Poetfolio addressed the Poetburo, announcing an immediate increase in the budget to expand the K9 breeding program. “We have temporarily drawn the Doggerel Dogs from their Blandland border duties to ascertain the extent of the contrabland in our libraries. They have been returned to their border duties.”

Poetician1 rose in the Poetburo and declared, “Poetry is going to turn up the heat in our war of warmth against Blandland to cease its textpansionist policy to spread its unrelenting boredom into our precious creative communities. To do so via our libraries and targeting our children is reprehensible.”

“Mediocracy sells, and Blandland’s profits are a threat to the arts in all our United Imagine Nations. Poetry is strengthening the bonds with our arts allies. We will prevail.”
